Dear Andrew

I was extremely sorry I found it quite impossible to have the pleasure of seeing you again and having a chat over old times while I was in Hobart last week. I went over hurriedly about business in connection with the timber mills which I had never seen and Jones forced up a trip immediately I arrived. He were three days down there and expected to hold our meeting in Hobart on the Monday afternoon; but the men we had to consult could not come at the last moment and the meeting had to be put off till that night. As this was my last night I had been hoping to spend some portion of it at Rosebanks. I could not, however, get out of the business which was the object of my trip.

I have some hope that my next trip to the Island State will find me free of members to a considerable extent, and that I shall have a real holiday there, renewing my acquaintance with people & places which grow no less dear to me with the lapse of time. My health has been better lately, but I I a singular disinclination for the work & worry of business, and we both are feeling a little unptted for it.

Kind regards to Mrs Clark and the children and hoping you are all well

Yours very truly
D. H. Canard
